About the Course:

The free market economy has resulted in range of choices for consumers and increased competition for providers. Health care sector is one of the fastest growing sectors. Existing healthcare organizations are expanding by opening hospitals in new service areas. New organizations are entering with latest technology, state-of-art equipment and market strategies. Thus leading to competition in the health care sector. Consequently, health Care Providers are increasingly confronted with judicious management. The programme tries to meet this necessary by providing trained managers for this job.

Hospitals play a critical role in improving the health status of the society and they are the backbone of the healthcare delivery system. There are nearly 5500 hospitals (both in public and private sector) in India.

WHO estimates that India needs 80,000 hospital beds each year in the next five years to meet the demands of its population.

The programme provides a generalist perspective which enables students to view the hospitals in a holistic manner as well as place it in the context of the larger demand for healthcare services. While the programme is based on the standard model of management education as practiced by top ranking institutions, this programme is distinguished by its rigour and discipline and the strong emphasis on hospital based learning.

Goal: The one-year programme is a flagship educational programme aimed at developing competent and committed personnel who can create favorable environment in hospitals for providing quality healthcare based on ethical values with passion and compassion.
